

Short biography of Pia C. Maly Sundgren

Professor Pia Maly Sundgren is the head of the Department of Radiology, Clinical Sciences/Lund, Lund University in Sweden, Co-Director for Lund University BioImaging Center, and senior consultant in neuroradiology at Skåne University hospital, LU, Lund. Her research focuses on advanced MR imaging and conducts imaging research focused on monitoring treatment response and effects of radiation in brain tumors, advanced imaging in autoimmune diseases with special focus on SLE as well as in pain conditions. Her research is conducted both at 3T and 7T. For advanced brain MRI she is an opinion leader and internationally recognized. Research collaboration exists with University centers worldwide. She is President of the ISMRM, and vice-President of ESNR and chair of the ESNR neuropediatric committee, General Secretary of WFNRS and scientific secretary for the Swedish Society of Radiology and member of the ESR Research Committee. She is active member of several research councils of various organizations in Sweden and Europe and of many international scientific and executive program committees and faculties. Prof. Sundgren have published over 170 papers and reviews, over 210 scientific abstracts, three books and several book chapters and have given over 300 international invited lectures and workshops worldwide.

She received the Nelson Mandela Gold Medal by the RSSA in 2018, and she has been award the MICHM Michigan Clinical and Translational Research Distinguished Mentor Award 2014, the ISMRM Outstanding Teachers Award 2016, and the Lund University Minerva Award for Academic Leadership 2018.

Prof. Sundgren presently supervise or co-supervise eight Ph.D. students and have significant grant support for her research.